DACHSHUND GETS 53-LB. ROTTWEILER PREGNANT!

By JUNE SAWYER / Weekly World News

PERTH, Australia — Dog owner Mike Labew won a $3,000 lawsuit because his burly, 53-pound Rottweiler got pregnant during a brief afternoon delight — with a love-struck, 14-pound dachshund.

The romantic interlude occurred when Willy, the pint-size pooch, sputtted Matilda the Rottweiler in heat. Lind up in a neighbour's yard.

A passerby saw the two dogs passionately locked together and stopped to watch the bizarre affair because of the incredible difference in their sizes.

"You don't see a dachshund making love to a Rottweiler every day of the week," he joked.

Labew took a photo of the dogs while the peaverty tried to separate them with spray from the hose. A month later Labew found out that his pedigreed Rottweiler was pregnant with 10 puppies.

Unfortunately, the world will never see the litter from the unlikely lovers. Labew had the pregnancy terminated with a hysterectomy, leaving Matilda forever sterile.

Labew sued dachshund owner James Choorish, claiming he failed to keep Willy under control. He also claimed Choorish refused to pay for the operation to sterilize Matilda to an acceptable male so that a litter might be sold. But Willy ruined those plans.

Choorish tried to defend his pet's pet by casting aspersions on Matilda's character. But the judge didn't believe it.

"The defendant presented testimony of other dog-owning neighbors speculating that Matilda had been visited by other male dogs, in particular, a determined but inadequate little Shih Tzu with an injured hip," the judge wrote.

"But only speculation existed, as opposed to the certain success enjoyed by Willy."

The judge ordered Choorish to pay Labew $3,000 in damages.

Fleas have excellent memories!

The common flea has an excellent memory, even better than that of the famed elephant.

That's the conclusion of Israeli scientist Dr. Z Gaines Gomez.

Dr. Gomez tested the celebrated powers of more than 2,000 fleas, gathering the insects in one galaxy at the end of a maze, rewarding them with tasty food at the other end to get them to the food.

"We have a lot more to study on the... says Dr. Gomez, "But at this point, I would rate the flea's memory on a par with any animal on Earth with the exception of the dolphin."

Man who ate 3 packs of cigarettes a day for 45 years

By JOE BERGER
Weekly World News

...chokes to death — on a filter!

RENO, Nev — Easy-going grampa Wesley Haskins never smoked a cigarette in his life, but the oddball oldster put away three packs a day for 45 years — gobbling them down like popcorn or polishing them off as butt-and-butter sandwiches.

Wacky Wesley's harebrained eating habits finally caught up with him, though, the day he whipped up a giggle sandwich on sourdough bread, took three mighty bites — and choked to death on a filter!

"Wes was always so careful because he knew those filters could kill him if one went down the wrong way," said his heartsick sister Cynthia Mahaffa.

"But this particular day, I was visiting at his house and he got to talking while he was eating, telling me a story, you know.

"Well, I turned away for a minute, and when I turned back, Wes was gagging and pointing to his throat and he was already starting to turn blue.

"I tried to hit him on the back and knock a loose end that I tried that Heimlich thing, but nothing worked. By the time I called 911 and the ambulance got there, it was just too late."

One of a kind Wesley, 68, had been puffing down weeds since that fateful day in 1932 when a beer-drinking buddy shoved a cigarette into his hand in a Birmingham, Ala., bar.

"My friend was kidding me, telling me I wasn't man enough to smoke," the fun-loving father of four told Weekly World News in a 1993 interview.

"So I said, 'Here's the way a man does it,' and I chewed the thing up and ate it right down.

"It was the first time I'd ever done anything like that and I was shocked at how good the darn thing tasted. I bought a pack of my own, and before the night was over I'd eaten the whole thing, filters and all.

"My friends thought I'd be sick as a dog the next morning, but I woke up feeling like a million bucks. The first thing I did was run out and buy me a pack of cigarettes for breakfast."

And the way-out widower had been puffing down cigs like they were going out of style ever since.

"Sometimes I just sit in front of the TV and chomp 'em like popcorn," the retired rocker said in 1993. "Sometimes I crumble 'em up and sprinkle them on my baked potato like chives. And sometimes I make my own butt-lover's supreme pizza with onions and extra cheese.

"Once you develop a taste for cigarettes, the slop they serve you in most restaurants just doesn't measure up anymore."

The nicotine-eatin' oldster is survived by two sons, two daughters, his sister Cynthia and nine grandchildren.

HEARTSICK sister Cynthia Mahaffa.

He even ate them on baked potatoes & pizza!

OVERALL Wesley Haskins, 68, had been puffing down cigarette sandwiches since 1932 and had never been sick a day.

5 kinds of workers that bug bosses most!

There are five types of employees that drive bosses crazy — and if you're one of these types you could be unknowingly sabotaging your chances of getting ahead, says an expert.

Here are the five types, according to psychologist Dr. Elior Kinarthy — plus his tips on how to change if you think you fit into one of these categories:

1 The Leader-Upper thinks he can do everything, and do it well. As a result, he becomes overwhelmed by the size of his work load. To overcome this problem, you should realistically assess your tasks, then decide if you can handle all of them.

2 The Paper-Sifter drives bosses crazy because he spends so much time gathering information, explained Dr. Kinarthy. "The key is to set deadlines for yourself."

3 The Yo-Yo jumps back and forth between tasks but never completes anything. To overcome the problem, begin each morning by making a list of the important tasks you have to do that day. Finish the most important ones first.

4 The Procrastinator puts off doing a task because he feels intimidated by the size or difficulty of the job. The solution is to break a big or challenging task down into several easy-to-accomplish steps.

5 The Messy Worker sits at a desk that looks like it was hit by a tornado. Although he may be a good employee, the boss may judge him on appearances and conclude his performance is as sloppy as his desk is. The simple solution is to take time twice a day to clean up your work area.

HOW TO STOP BOREDOM FROM WRECKING YOUR MARRIAGE!

By JUNE SAWYER / Weekly World News

Does your mate sometimes seem as dull as dishwater? That's a common problem in many marriages in which partners are bored to tears because they've grown too much alike, experts say.

"Time and again we see marriages flounder because they become boring," said sociologist Dr. Jackie Bides. "Some couples strive for ultimate togetherness. They hold the same opinions on politics, sports and family matters. They join the same organizations, watch the same movies and read the same books.

"Many couples become so similar they even begin to look alike. You'll find couples who don't even have to talk to each other anymore. They each know what the other is going to say.

"And then their marriage fails — and why? Because they become hopelessly boring to each other."

Dr. Fred Humphrey, an expert in family relations, agreed. "A boring marriage can lead to irritability and even open fighting."

Here are some ways the experts say you and your mate can escape the boredom trap:

- Start asking yourself if you're doing things you don't want to do just to please your mate. If you are, you're hurting not only yourself but your marriage as well.
- Discuss your feeling of boredom with your spouse — you may find that he or she finds the marriage boring, too. Then you can try to find solutions.
- Sign up for courses taught at local schools or libraries. Take up a new interest — a fun sport, for example. Urge your partner to develop a new interest, too.
- Go to movies without your mate once in a while. Hope you and your spouse would not normally go to together. Read some different books, or start watching TV shows your partner does not usually watch.
- Go shopping for clothes — alone. Pick the styles that appeal to you. Don't let your spouse dress you to please himself or herself.

Guys & gals BOTH go for blondes!

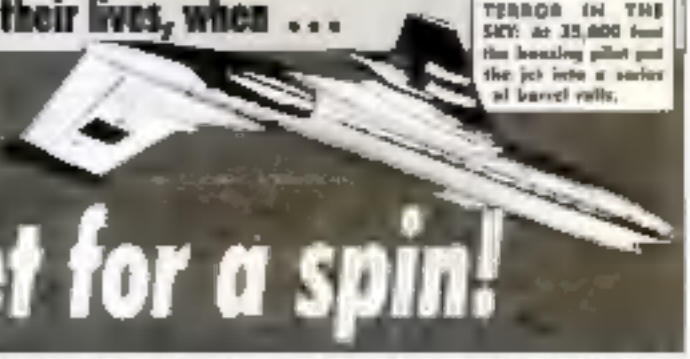
Surprise! Gals go for blondes, too!

Men and women agree that hair is a major factor in sex appeal, a new study shows.

And while it's well-known that men prefer blondes, the poll showed that women also favor golden locks.

Stunned passengers get spine-chilling ride of their lives, when ...

Drunk pilot takes jet for a spin!



TERROR IN THE SKY: At 35,000 feet the boozing pilot put the jet into a series of barrel rolls.

By JUNE SAWYER / Weekly World News

MOSCOW — A drunken Russian pilot was grounded for life after completing a stomach-churning aerobatics act — in a military jumbo jet filled with screaming passengers!

The government's official version of the hair-raising escapade appeared in a Ministry of Defense publication, which cited the incident as another example of the negative impact alcohol has on the world's [illegible]-loving country.

The report says Capt. Alexander Turunok and the crew of his Air Force jet had been drinking heavily before taking off from Istanbul, Turkey, en route to Moscow with a cabin full of military personnel.

After the plane climbed to a cruising altitude of 35,000 feet, the pilot and crew "continued to indulge, in direct violation of the policy prohibiting the consumption of alcoholic beverages" in the cockpit, the report said.

Approximately 90 minutes into the flight, the co-pilot and the flight engineer — neither of whom were publicly identified — passed out cold in their seats.

"Capt. Turunok then invited a lady Army captain to join him in the cockpit and drank vodka with her in further breach of regulations," the report said.

As the plane thundered over southern Russia toward Moscow, Capt. Turunok took the plane off automatic pilot to show the woman officer "what the aircraft could really do," investigators wrote.

Rousing passengers who weren't buckled into their seats were hurled through the cabin when the pilot put the jet into a steep dive and then through a series of 360-degree barrel rolls.

Airport air traffic controllers reported seeing the jet on their radar screens climbing and diving sharply, and then banking from one side to the other.

The jet eventually landed safely in Moscow, but 28 passengers were hospitalized with injuries suffered during the spine-chilling ride.

SECRET FBI PHOTO
FIGHTING UNTIL THE END! As FBI agents disconnected upon Slat Boy, the 3-foot-tall creature went wild — biting two agents on the arm, then biting off another's finger and eating it.

Bizarre creature has been on the run since 1992!

BAT BOY CAPTURED!

By JOE BERGER / Weekly World News

Copyright © 1997 Weekly World News

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — The bizarre, bug-gobbling Bat Boy who's been on the run since he escaped from a West Virginia research facility in 1992 has been recaptured — and excited scientists say they may finally be able to unravel the mystery of the tiny terror's origins!

Federal agents corralled the bloodcurdling creature in a wooded area northeast of here after more than two months of reported sightings in and around Charlotte. But Bat Boy did not go down without a fight.

"The thing bit two of the agents real bad on the arm, and he bit off one guy's finger and ate it," said rattled camper Rudy Winscel, 33, who witnessed the hair-raising confrontation. "He was terrified — and more ferocious than just about anything I've ever seen in the wilds."

The sawed-off escapee — now nearly three feet tall and weighing about 40 pounds — was finally subdued with the aid of a tiny tranquilizer dart and was whisked away to the top-secret laboratory from which he escaped in September 1992.

"This time we'll all take extra security precautions to make sure the little fellow doesn't get away from us again," said concerned zoologist Dr. Ron Dillon, who originally discovered the big-eyed Bat Boy while studying subterranean life-forms in a mountain cave five years ago.

ON THE RUN: Bat Boy tore the heavy steel padlock off the door to his holding cell and escaped in 1992. The manhunt had featured on Charlotte, N.C., since early July.

'He was more ferocious than just about anything I've ever seen in the wilds'

— Camper Rudy Winscel

'From Mr. Winscel's description — and the terror in his voice — we were reasonably sure we'd found Bat Boy'

The mystified scientist surmised at the time that the unpredictable, pointy-eared creature might be a human baby raised by bats or a separate species that wandered from the twisting path of man's evolution during prehistoric times.

But before Dr. Dillon could determine what he was dealing with, Bat Boy tore the heavy steel padlock off the door to his holding cell and escaped.

"He ripped that big lock off like it was made of plastic," the astonished zoologist recalled. "He's very strong — and that's one of the things that make him so dangerous."

Since his escape, the elusive fugitive has been spotted hundreds of times from Boston to Bakersfield, and dozens of stunned citizens have reported being attacked by the half-pint hellion.

In Florida last year, a panic-stricken 5-year-old girl was bitten on the arm when she ventured too close to Bat Boy while he was feasting on a raccoon carcass he had dragged from the woods.

And in Texas last year, a flabbergasted 44-year-old man had a chunk of his right ear bitten off by the runaway runt.

"Since early July, any number of sightings have been recorded in and around Charlotte, and that's where our search had been concentrated recently," Dr. Dillon told a reporter.

"Then last week a camper, Mr. Winscel, reported being attacked on a riverbank by a creature with sharp teeth and wild eyes, and from his description — and the terror in his voice — we were reasonably sure we had at long last found Bat Boy."

Police, scientists and federal agents rushed to the remote area and eventually managed to capture the screeching creature.

"There was a certain amount of bloodshed but only on the part of the agents — Bat Boy didn't get a scratch," Dr. Dillon said later.

"Now if we can only hang onto him long enough this time, we may finally find out just what — or who

Anti-drug crusader has sent dozens of dope dealers to the gallows

By TEDDY GERALD / Weekly World News

KUALA LAMPUR, Malaysia — Iron-fisted Ina Jen is a drug-hating lady judge who has sent dozens of dope dealers to the gallows — and proudly displays the dead men's teeth on a string around her neck!

"These teeth are my most prized souvenirs," boasts the grim-faced judge, showing off her gruesome jewelry to reporters.

"For me, they are happy reminders of the scum I've helped wipe off the face of the Earth.

"I'm sending a message to the human garbage who sell drugs to our children — and I hope I'm sending it loud and clear."

Hang-'em-high Ina became one of Malaysia's most ferocious anti-drug campaigners nearly 20 years ago after her younger brother Chen died of a heroin overdose here in the capital city.

The outraged lady's unprincipled pleas helped persuade her country to provide the death penalty for drug crimes.

And since being appointed to the bench four years ago, hard-nosed Judge Jen has made good use of the law — sentencing more than 50 dope dealers to die at the end of a rope.

"She is the most ruthless judge in the world, and we love her," said one vice cop. "When a drug defendant is taken to Jen's court, he is as good as dead."

And words could fail to describe the fear [illegible] when they learn that Jen is going to [illegible].

"I don't say I enjoy seeing anyone die, but I do get a certain satisfaction in realizing they won't be around any more, polluting our society and endangering our children," she said.

"When I see them hanging there, I know in my heart that I've done my job."

And before the corpses are cold, the crusty hanging judge always has an attending doctor pry out all the victim's teeth to add to her grisly collection.

"They are like notches on my gun, and I wear them around my neck for all the world to see," said the shameless lady. "I want people to know that I am Ina Jen, the hanging judge."

HANG 'EM HIGH — Judge Ina Jen, wearing a necklace of human teeth shows off some of the choppers yanked from the mouths of more than 50 convicted dope peddlers.

CATTY ITALIAN SCREEN STARS
Gina Lollobrigida and Sophia Loren

Q Gina Lollobrigida and Sophia Loren were the only Italian stars in Hollywood's movie heyday.

Did they like each other?

— Eric N., Columbus, Ind.

A Are you kidding? Here's what they had to say about each other: Gina on Sophia: "Sophia is a very pretty girl but she cannot threaten me because she is incapable of playing my roles." Sophia on Gina: "Her personality is limited. She is good as a peasant girl, but incapable of playing a lady."

— Judy J., Hamilton, Canada

A It's true. And a witness was Lansbury's ex-husband and a passionate affair with none other than Eva Peron — wife of political strongman Juan Peron, who ruled Argentina with an iron hand. Years later, she said that she planned to an orphanage. The child, Judy, looked a lot like Clark.

Incredible photo of tourist being eaten by zoo lions!

She tumbled into the [illegible] — and be[illegible] their midday sn[illegible]

By KELLY TURNER (Weekly World News)

As dozens of tourists watched in horror, a 22-year-old teacher was savagely mauled by three lions at an animal park in Africa — but her incredible courage in the face of death enabled her to live to tell of her chilling ordeal!

Janice Gruber, a grade-school teacher from Munich, Germany, lost her footing while trying to retrieve her camera and toppled into a lion holding pen in the Masai Mara Game Preserve in Kenya.

"I didn't know how many lions had attacked me," Janice said from her bed in Nairobi People's Hospital. "But I knew it was more than one. I could feel their fangs ripping into me in different parts of my body.

"The pain was worse than anything I had ever known before. I knew I was going to die. I just prayed that it wouldn't take long.

"I had been snapping a picture and shouting when I lost my balance and fell. I remember thinking how ridiculous it was that I was about to be killed while I was on vacation. I was really pissed out of the pen that by then, there wasn't much to see except blood and torn flesh.

"The only important thing is that I'm still alive. It's been 24 days since it happened, but I can still hear the lions growling. I can still smell their hot breath. And I can still feel their fangs crunching into my body.

"They chewed off my left foot and four fingers on my left hand. And I lost most of my right ear. The rest of my body is covered with bite punctures and claw scratches. But thank God, I'm not dead."

Janice said she owes her life to a magazine article she once read about a man who survived a bear attack in Alaska by pretending to be dead.

"So I just lay there and played dead," she said. "I knew that if I moved, the lions would go for the kill. I was very badly torn up. But like me, he's still alive."

"I remembered that story and, I knew what I had to do to live. The pain was incredible. My whole body was in agony.

"I wanted to scream and lash out at that beast, but I knew the smartest I did, my life was over. Somehow I bit back the pain and made it through. Finally, they quit. I was told the lions just left me for dead."

When the lions moved away from her torn body, game wardens, afraid of using their rifles earlier for fear of hitting the girl, killed the three lions and carried Janice to safety.

"We were all on the observation deck above it that when the cartwheel over the fence and fell into the pit.

"When she fell, I thought she was dead because she didn't move a muscle. In my mind I said, 'What a horrible way to die.' Yet she's alive! I can hardly believe it."

OLIVE OIL

Nature's

By LISA MERARI Weekly World News

Olive oil is known around the world as Mother Nature's miracle medicine, a powerful weapon in the war against disease and aging that is more effective than many high-priced prescription drugs.

Now experts reveal that in combination with ordinary garlic, the super oil becomes more than three times more potent — giving it the capability to cure cancer, heart disease and other deadly ailments, to prevent the debilitating effects of aging and even to help you lose pounds and pounds of unwanted weight.

Dr. Nicolas Katsis

"Mixing these two healing foods produces magical effects," said Dr. Nicolas Katsis of Athens, Greece, whose recent study on breast cancer and diet has made international headlines. "Alone, each is extremely beneficial — but together they can overwhelm almost every health problem that affects mankind. It's truly an amazing combination."

Use these miracle foods together to produce the following health benefits:

ARTHRITIS

Make a warm drink of one tablespoon of olive oil mixed with ½ teaspoon grated garlic and one cup boiling water. Drink it morning and evening to ward off arthritis pain.

You can also make a soothing salve by combining olive oil with garlic powder and rubbing the mixture on aching areas. Relief should be noticeable within minutes.

In a recent university study in Switzerland, doctors gave 400 arthritis patients a syrup of one teaspoon of olive oil mixed with ½ teaspoon of garlic juice every morning just before breakfast. An incredible 83 percent of the subjects reported significant reductions in arthritis pain and dramatic increases in mobility within two weeks.

BLADDER INFECTIONS

One teaspoon of olive oil and one teaspoon of garlic juice mixed with a cup of warm water should help eliminate the bacteria responsible for bladder infections. Drink three times a day, before meals. Substitute cranberry juice for the water if the infection is especially stubborn.

CANCER

Recent research has shown the olive oil-garlic combination can dramatically improve cancer cure rates.

In one study of 27 patients being treated with chemotherapy for advanced bone, breast and stomach cancers, patients who took daily doses of olive oil and garlic experienced remissions twice that of patients who had chemotherapy and no olive oil and garlic.

GROUNDBREAKING cancer study was conducted by Dr. Saeki Okimoto

"We gave them a tablespoon of olive oil with ½ teaspoon of the juice of fresh garlic three times a day for a month," said Dr. Saeki Okimoto of Tokyo Medical College. "The others stayed with their usual diets.

"Those who took the olive oil mixture were much more likely to go into remission than the others. Of course, patients should consult their doctors first, but we think they should consider the treatment."

COLDS

The best in the immune system provided by one tablespoon of warm olive oil mixed with ½ teaspoon of garlic powder can help eliminate a cold within hours. The mixture is especially helpful in relieving the sniffles and a sore throat.

FATIGUE

Experts recommend mixing ½ teaspoon of olive oil into a glass of warm water, then sprinkling the beverage with a dusting of garlic powder and drinking it whenever fatigue sets in. The health warns Dr. Alfonso Prieto of Madrid, Spain, whose research on chronic fatigue has made him internationally famous. But within two or three days, you should notice you have more pep.

HEARING LOSS

Recent research with the hearing impaired demonstrates that daily doses of olive oil and garlic help repair damage to the inner ear and boosts hearing levels.

HEART DISEASE

You can guard against heart disease and prevent the deposit of fatty plaques in the arteries by eating olive oil and garlic as a spread on lunch and dinner rolls. Simply mix together one part olive oil with one part finely grated fresh garlic and a sprinkle of salt. Then spread this delicious combination on a roll and eat with two meals a day. The miracle remedy reduced hardening of the arteries by 48 percent in nursing home patients, research shows.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

High blood pressure and its accompanying symptoms disappeared within a month after patients in an Italian study began taking regular doses of two parts olive oil mixed with one part garlic juice.

Patients' blood pressure readings improved markedly and all the subjects reported feeling better after a few weeks of the miracle cure.

IMPOTENCE

Olive oil has a long history as an aphrodisiac as well as a powerful cure for impotence.

Last year, German scientists discovered that in combination with the juice of fresh garlic, the oil actually mania in men and women.

Applied externally, the mixture of one tablespoon of oil with ½ tablespoon of garlic juice can enhance sexual stamina.

INDIGESTION

A miracle cure for indigestion can be made from ½ cup of olive oil in which three large garlic cloves have been left to steep for a week or so.

Whenever you suffer from heartburn, gas or upset stomach, take two teaspoons of the mixture to settle your stomach and speed up digestion.

WEIGHT LOSS

You can take off pounds of unwanted fat in just weeks by using both olive oil and garlic liberally in your cooking.

In addition, experts say you can help ugly bulges melt away by starting your day with two tablespoons of olive oil mixed with one teaspoon of garlic juice in a glass of warm water.

Repeat this cocktail before going to bed.

Going into the low-exercise months of autumn and winter, adding these natural fish burning ingredients to your diet is timely.

73-LB. GRASSHOPPER CAPTURED IN AUSTRALIA!

SYDNEY, Australia — The world's biggest grasshopper is 34 inches long and weighs 73 pounds — and it takes two grown men to hold it down!

The "whopper hopper" lies in limelight as the farm of Byron Hurley, who claims he's seen dozens of grasshoppers just as big.

By ALEX MORGAN
Weekly World News

Hurley had been ridiculed by the Australian press after he made his claims about the gigantic grasshoppers. But when he finally got a photograph of one, everyone stopped laughing.

"They all thought I was crazy or lying or something but they believe me now," he said. "And there's plenty more of those big things jumping around all over my land."

The photograph of the monstrous insect shows Hurley and friend Joe Ford holding the grasshopper between them.

Hurley said he has documented pictures. Ever since the photo was in Australia, busy reporters have called Hurley asking to come to his 143-acre farm. He has told them all to get lost.

"There were days a year ago! They didn't believe me then," he said.

IF GOD DIDN'T BELIEVE IN THE DEATH PENALTY, WHY ARE THE GRAVEYARDS SO FULL?

I just thought of something that's going to make all those bleeding-heart liberals madder than a lawyer with a broke client.

It if God didn't believe in the death penalty, why are the graveyards so full — and why are all the mortuaries so damn rich? It's pretty clear to me, folks, that the Good Lord is the world's number one supporter of the death penalty.

So any whining about how wrong it is to fry killers and rapists till they sizzle like steak on a grill is hogwash, pure and simple — because God pulls the switch on all of us eventually.

That means our politicians-wearing pals haven't paid a penny on their monthly bill since mid-1953 — about the time the Democrats took control of Congress.

POSH COMMUNITIES ALLOW ONLY PEDIGREED PETS

MINIATURE Rolls-Royces are irresistible to the rich-pet communities.

By ANN VICTORIA

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Homeowners' associations in some posh, gated communities are getting so strict about who moves into their complexes that they're even barring people with non-pedigreed pets!

Amazingly, residents' boards of high-class neighborhoods from Scarsdale, N.Y. to Brentwood, Calif., are actually refusing to permit prospective buyers to even consider purchasing a home if their dog or cat doesn't have papers proving it comes from an unpolluted ancestors.

...& even the cutest mutts get turned away!

DISCRIMINATION: Cats and the mixed-breed mongrels like this are banned from the high-class neighborhoods.

One couple, Fred and Mary Ralich, had a contract to purchase a home in Scarsdale, N.Y., but they were turned down flat at a prestigious housing complex because their dog — a rescue mutt — had been adopted at the pound.

"It's not fair," said Mrs. Ralich. "Regis isn't a pure-bred dog but he's well-behaved and sweet-natured. We love him very much and I know that he'd fit in very well with the other dogs in the complex. Although we're disappointed, we're not angry."

"I can't understand how they can keep us out just because he doesn't have papers documenting a pure-bred pup.

But Arthur Caterbe, president of the homeowners' association at the fancy development, is convinced he and his fellow members did the right thing in keeping the Ralishes out.

"I know it sounds harsh to the average person," he insisted. "But we have to apply these applications. Rejected.

"But we have to be selective. When we're paying a maximum of $2 million for a home in an exclusive community, we can't be expected to have no-pedigreed dogs and cats living next door with animals that are frankly rabid!"

But the Ralishes haven't given up yet. They're planning to take their case to court in hope the homeowners' association will accept them.

The defendant, Mr. Ralich said, "There are civil rights laws in this country that make it illegal to refuse to sell someone a house on the basis of race, creed or national origin.

It seems to us — and to our attorney — that these civil rights laws also prohibit the association from discriminating against us because our adorable little dog isn't a purebred.

"So we're going to court — not only for ourselves but for the hundreds of families all over America with non-pedigreed pets who can't buy the home they want because of their ugly prejudice."

PRESIDENT of the homeowners' association Arthur Caterbe, above, considers Fred and Mary Ralish's, above, mixed-breed dog inferior.

POODLES have the distinguished ancestry that makes them welcome in highbrow neighborhoods.

Grieving widow's shocking account

'A GRIZZLY ATE MY HUSBAND — WHILE I WATCHED!'

By BEATRICE DEXTER
Weekly World News

WINCHESTER, England — Horrified tourist Cherry Recksten watched helplessly as her beloved husband saved her from attack by a 12-foot grizzly — and then was eaten alive before her very eyes!

After being attacked herself, Cherry scrambled up a tree, then watched helplessly as the bear lunged at her husband Trevor, 46, knocked him to the ground and savagely bit and clawed at him. She saw the dim puppet bear tear his body to shreds and then eat his left leg.

While the attack was still going on, Cherry ran to a nearby campsite for help. Rangers arrived too late to save her husband, but Cherry was airlifted to a hospital and successfully underwent surgery to repair deep wounds on her head, back and buttocks.

"The bear came out from behind some bushes and started to head toward our backpacks," recalled Cherry, 45, who was vacationing with Trevor in the Canadian Rockies when the tragic attack occurred. "We started running in different directions and then it caught up with me.

"I started to climb up a tree and the bear pulled my boots off. It dragged me down and I could feel it biting on the back of my scalp. Trevor started screaming and yelling to try and distract the bear and he told me to run. Just run.

"The bear threw himself at Trevor and attacked him. I was still up the tree when the bear knocked him to the ground and started biting him all over."

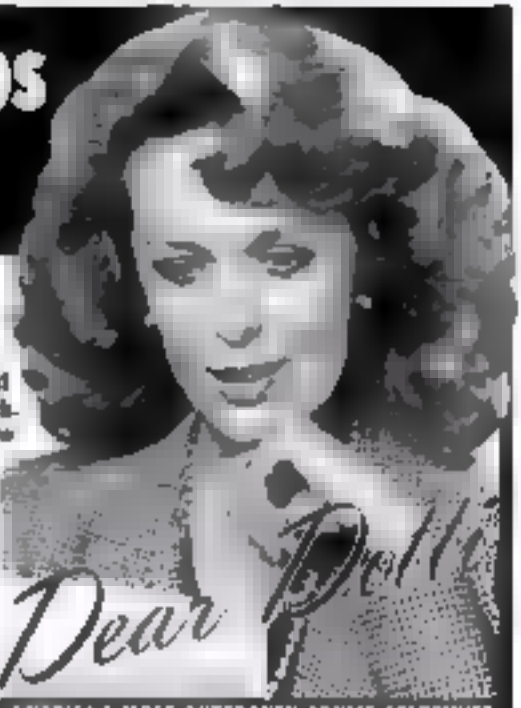
Hubby's gay brother keeps stealing all my lipstick!



AMERICA'S MOST OUTSPOKEN ADVICE COLUMNIST

CINDY in Hanley

Dear Dotti: I've got a serious problem with my husband's fruity brother Sean. I don't mind the fact that he's gay — it's no skin off my back. But I do mind the fact that he's a bra-and-panty thief and steals all my damn lipstick. Every time he comes over to my house he finds some excuse to go into my bedroom. And when he leaves, things are always missing, especially my lipsticks. I asked him about it and he denies stealing anything. But I know he's the culprit because he wears the exact same shades that I do. My husband won't say anything because he doesn't like confrontation. Help me, Dotti. Sean is no longer welcome in my home and I'll do anything to keep him away from here! — Cindy in Hanley

Dear Cindy: The quickest way to get a gay man out of your life is to confront him with the most terrifying prospect in existence — sex with a girl. The bottom line? Invite Sean over when your hubby isn't home and take off your clothes!

How can I get my co-worker to shut up?

Dear Dotti: I have a friend I work with on the midnight shift. Every time I start talking about something she has to do me one better. If I get sick, she's had the same ailment — but worse. If someone compliments me she gets mad and starts bragging about herself. If someone is talking with me, she butts in and turns everything into "me, me, me." I can't stand it any more. How can she shut her up? — Fed Up in Milan

Dear Fed Up: Don't be ignored. Study the fool! When he has everything you have, give her the silent treatment!

I'm short, fat and ugly — but gals ADORE me!

Dear Dotti: At 5-foot, 5-inch, 248-pound, ugly 25-year old, I'm not exactly what you'd call a chick magnet. But so help me I can't get more than 10 feet out my front door without women flocking to me. I've tried everything from dark glasses to ski masks but no matter what I do

NEW JESUS TO BE

PARIS — A top geneticist [illegible] controversial experiment in the history of science... The cloning of Jesus Christ using DNA from the Shroud of Turin!

Noted French researcher Dr. Louis Dupre, who rocked the scientific community two years ago with the first-ever successful clone of a human being, now has his sights set on the ultimate clone, that of Savior of the World.

Critics worldwide are calling the idea blasphemous and believe the ex[illegible] must be stopped at any cost.

But experts familiar with Dr Dupre's work say he has an excellent chance [illegible] the mind-boggling feat.

"The process is simple but not easy," says Dr Dupre. "We've already created a blood sample from the Shroud of Turin -- the linen cloth used to wrap the body of Jesus for burial — and preserved it in a saline solution.

"The sample contains all the nucleotides necessary to form a cloneable DNA molecule. We plan to inject the DNA into the egg of a suitable woman and let her carry it to term in her womb."

The surrogate mother has not yet been selected. But Dr Dupre says he's received hundreds of requests from women all over the world.

Understandably, there has been a storm of protest from Christians everywhere.

"We can't let this happen," says Father Paul Bertoni, noted Catholic theologian. "The Bible clearly states that Christ will return in glory on the clouds, and that no man knows when it will happen. Dr Dupre is playing God, setting himself up as the judge of when Jesus should return. Only the Lord can decide that."

A Vatican spokesman said that the Pope is "deeply disturbed" and will issue a statement sometime in the next few weeks denouncing the cloning.

But not all Christians are offended. A small minority, like Dr. Andre Vidieu, French author of The Jew, Juke and the Testaments, believes science has not only the right but

NEW DRUG STOPS STROKES — INSTANTLY!

DURHAM, N.C. — A commonly used medicine could prevent an estimated 40,000 strokes each year if doctors prescribed it more often, according to a surprising new study.

The five-year Duke University study revealed that the blood thinning drug warfarin could prevent about half of the fatal strokes suffered annually by Americans with irregular heartbeats.

Doctors have often been reluctant to prescribe the drug because of side effects such as hemorrhaging.

Check out your mortgage — you could sav thousand$ of dollar$

Banks and other lenders make many mistakes in figuring out mortgage payments — and even a small error can cost you thousands of dollars!

But if you have an adjustable-rate mortgage (ARM), an expert can check the paperwork and find out if you're owed a refund.

Because interest rates on ARM loans are recalculated on a regular basis, there's more room for error than with a fixed-rate loan.

"According to one study of 2,000 homeowners, almost 90 percent of all adjustable-rate mortgages contain errors," said Larry Powers, a noted financial [illegible] homeowner who was owed $20,000 by his lender."

The experts say there may well be an error in your ARM payments if:

● General interest rates are moving down, yet your ARM payments remain the same or go up.

● Your mortgage was issued before 1985. Computer programs are used to calculate mortgage rates and older programs have higher error rates.

● Your equity in the property is more than 20 percent, but the lender is still asking you to pay for private mortgage insurance.

If you notice these "red flags," you may want to have your mortgage payments checked out.

Many companies will do mortgage audits for a [illegible] fee. Look in the Yellow Pages under "Mortgage Consultants."

Rain Forest Wonder Herb Now Available in the United States Without a Prescription!

THIS JUNGLE PILL WILL CHANGE YOUR LIFE!

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — What is considered by many to be one of the most powerful herbs on the planet is now available in the United States without a prescription and costs just pennies a day. The rain forest herb Una de Gato (Cat's Claw) is not only relied on by millions of true and grateful believers, it is guaranteed to change your life in a matter of hours, days or in truly stubborn situations, weeks, exalted experts report.

Incredibly there's more. According to Dr. Donna Schwenkbeveldt, author of the respected book, Herbs of the Ancients: Traditional and Common Uses, Una de Gato, which means "Cat's Claw" in Spanish, is a treasured and revered component of a folk tradition that has been tested and proven over a history of continuous use spanning hundreds of years.

"Rain forest herbs like Una de Gato clearly are among the purest and most powerful found in nature," declared Dr. Schwenkbeveldt. "They also are among the most thoroughly tested, having been used by the indigenous peoples of the Amazon for hundreds of years."

Dr. Schwenkbeveldt isn't the only expert singing the praises of Una de Gato (Cat's Claw), which is derived from the bark of a woody vine that grows abundantly in the Amazon rain forest.

Donna Schwenkbeveldt

The testimonials from ordinary people who have sought themselves among a growing legion of "Cat's Claw believers" are full of praises or heartfelt and sincere that they often culminate in tearful expressions of pure joy.

K.F. of Pensacola, FL, flatly stated: "Before I found Cat's Claw, I was dead — DEAD! This herb gave me more than a little pain — it gave me back my life."

D.A., of Elko, AL, is equally enthusiastic. He says: "The pain in my hip pretty crippled me for years. Just two weeks after I started Cat's Claw, the pain is gone. I jump up off the sofa like a 16 year old!"

C.G., of Statesboro, GA, goes even further than that. She says: "I had problems for years and Cat's Claw stopped them dead in their tracks. I lay in bed last night and kept saying 'Thank you Lord for the Cat's Claw.' I am going on 61, jumping rope and doing exercise. Four years ago, I was almost to the point I needed a walking cane or a walker."

Mind-boggling? There's more. L.R., of Albuquerque, N.M., says: "Thanks to Donna Andreasen and the Lord I found this wonderful rain forest herb. It has turned me back to life."

D.C. of Lake Worth, FL, knows the power of Cat's Claw well. He says: "I take Cat's Claw every day like a vitamin tablet and my doctor called the results of my recent physical, which he ordered a grueling, 26-function blood test, 'spectacular.'

"I have energy to spare and feel stronger, sharper and more alert than I did on a bad of 20. It might sound like a joke. But I'm as serious as a preacher when I say that, with Cat's Claw in my medicine chest, I am 100 percent confident that I will never be sick again. Cat's Claw is God's herb. There's not a doctor alive, not a medical technology available, that could make anything like this herb. Only God can make a miracle — and that's exactly what Cat's Claw is."

Breakthrough research in Europe where doctors routinely recommend herbs and herbal therapies to patients is equally dramatic. After long and intensive study, an esteemed Austrian researcher identified several important ingredients — active ingredients — found in the Cat's Claw herb. An extract is now being used as adjunctive therapy to the treatment of severe immune disorders.

It's no secret that a strong immune system enables the body to ward off or banish diseases and conditions of every description, even the most painful, debilitating and terrifying known to man.

Pure, powerful, premium Una de Gato (Cat's Claw) is, in fact, available without a prescription in the United States. You are strongly advised, however, to purchase yours from a reliable, trusted source. Infinity Herbs has sold and shipped premium, money-back-guaranteed Una de Gato (Cat's Claw) to well over 10,000 satisfied customers the world over since 1988. And at just $19 per bottle of 100, 500mg capsules, Infinity's Una de Gato (Cat's Claw) is a tremendous bargain. Please don't settle for cheap imposters or waste your hard-earned money on over-priced products costing $25 to $50 or more. Infinity's Una de Gato (Cat's Claw) is not only priced right, it is pure, powerful and certified. Not only that, Infinity's Una de Gato (Cat's Claw) is guaranteed to change your life — or your money back.

What these strange aches & pains REALLY mean!

You are not alone. You are not the only one who suffers from foot cramps in bed, ice-cream headaches and runny noses. But you might be hesitant to ask your doctor about such little aches, pains and ailments.

So we asked several experts in medicine and dentistry to explain some of them.

● Ice-cream headache — You won't find this in any medical textbook, but it's a common malady and can hurt like the dickens.

Some authorities think the probable culprit for that pain in the temporal nerve located in the cheek just behind your eye is the chill. Ice and menthol, the treasure of cold on the nerve get read as pain, and the message is sent along the pathway up into the temples.

The result: A headache. What should you do? Nothing. The pain lasts only 30 or 40 seconds no matter what you do.

● Fever — A temperature of 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit is normal. Any reading above that means your body is fighting off infection. Fever is a symptom of illness, not a disease. It's a sign that your body is trying to overcome a disease.

Fever is usually treated with aspirin, which reduces the temperature by acting on the brain's heat-regulating center. Cooling baths and sponging are also helpful.

● Tiny red spots — Tiny red spots, about the size of pinpoints, are usually caused by a rupture of small blood vessels in the skin. They are not dangerous in themselves, but may be a symptom of a serious disease.

● Cramps — Cramps are caused by a lack of calcium in the blood. Calcium is needed for proper muscle action. Drinking milk is the best way to get calcium into the body.

● Stiff neck — Stiffness in the neck is usually caused by a cold. Sometimes it is an indication of a more serious disease, such as meningitis.

● Foot cramps — A result of an injury, overused muscles or fatigue. Massage and exercise will help relieve the pain.

● Stomach upset — A variety of causes, ranging from overeating to a bout of nervous anxiety.

● Stomach pain — In some people, it's the result of indigestion. It is a sign of inflammation of the appendix, if it is severe and localized in the lower right abdomen. It could be a symptom of many other ailments.

● Sleeping — A feeling of unusual exhaustion after a night's sleep is usually a sign of an underlying illness. It is a symptom of many diseases, ranging from a cold to cancer. Why does the doctor always comment before taking a urine sample? Because urine is a valuable indicator of many diseases.

● Sleeping in the car — Often it is the result of too much sun or drinking too much alcohol.

AMERICANS STILL FEAR THE [redacted] OF THE EVIL EYE!

Belief in the ancient curse of the "evil eye" is still very much alive — even in modern America, say [redacted] psychologists in the book The Evil Eye. "Out of 100 cultures, 97 still believe in the evil eye," says Dr. John Roberts, who adds that there are "literally thousands of customs" used to prevent or cure the power of the curse.

"In Italy, houses have a cross painted on the roofs. In Greek villages, windowsills and doors are painted blue. In Mexico, children thought to be afflicted with the evil eye are rubbed with raw beef eggs to absorb 'the heat' of the eye," said Dr. Roberts.

The evil eye superstition — a belief that someone can project harm by looking at someone or his property — is found in many parts of the world, according to Dr. Clarence Maloney. "In Mexico and the Philippines it strikes mainly babies or children.

"Elsewhere — the Mediterranean, for instance — it attacks people of any age. In most regions the wealthy or handsome are considered susceptible because they are objects of envy," he said.

"Believers credit the evil eye with chilling powers — headaches, exhaustion and depression being the milder forms and spirit possession being the extreme example," said anthropologist Dr. Willa Appel. "The evil eye was brought to the U.S. by immigrants whose descendants still ward off the curse using traditional methods."

The 41 pound mighty mite beat the world record of 1,858 consecutive push-ups in two hours, a record held by a 3-year-old Texas boy.

"I did it for my daddy," Bobby said shyly. "I want to make him proud of me."

And his father, a construction foreman, is definitely very proud indeed. "I've got to admit my kid really surprised me," he gushed.

"I've been taking him to the gym with me ever since he was a baby. My health club has a child-care service where they keep an eye on the kids while the parents exercise."

But Bobby wasn't content just to watch. By the time he could walk, the little guy was following his dad around and attempting his workouts — and he continued his exercises at home.

have a few pieces of equipment like weights and a bench. Bobby started lifting weights all by himself.

"I thought nothing of it but he started lifting the pound weights.

Then one day the superboy

"I checked my watch before he started," his dad recalled.

"I didn't think it would take very long. But by the time he finished he had done 1,000 push-ups!"

Bobby started to get tired and panted during and after the 1,000th push-up, but finally finished the task.

"I asked if he could keep going and he said he could," his dad said. "I'm sure he could do that.

"I really believe he'll be famous some day and I'm proud of him and want to be like him, too!"

DO YOU GET THE URGE TO KILL? Don't sweat it — it's normal!

Ever had an urge to tell off the boss? Quit your job? Pig out on banana splits? Tell your mother-in-law what you really think of her? Or even to kill someone?

If you've thought of some things and wondered then was something really wrong with you, a leading psychiatrist wants you to know that urges are okay.

"The truth is, urges are natural and normal," declared Dr. James Hodge. "They are nothing to be ashamed of. People sometimes suppress urges because they don't want to act on them, but they're perfectly normal."

Dr. Hodge explained that the more tension we're subjected to — the more disappointments, frustrations or annoyances — the stronger the urges to do something gratifying.

But Dr. Hodge warns that your urges will turn into actions that will get you into trouble and upset Dr. Hodge.

"Your conscience stops you from acting on a questionable urge," he explained. "But if you don't control your conscience, what will happen if I follow through on this urge?" and then turn away from actions that will mess up your life, prove dangerous, harmful or unacceptable."

Dr. Hodge concluded: "Instead of trying to banish urges from your mind, make the most of them. Act them out mentally and you'll be less apt to act them out in real life."

Indians sailed to Europe 7 years BEFORE Columbus discovered America!

But they hated what they saw and came BACK to America!

By RANDY JEFFRIES / Weekly World News

BOSTON — In 1485, seven years before Columbus discovered the New World, a [redacted] of 47 American Indians sailed all the way across the Atlantic and actually reached Europe!

Dr. Smeltzer

But after only five months of observing life in Lisbon, Portugal, Malaga, Spain, and other Western European cities, the heroic explorers returned home in disgust calling the white man's civilization stupid, crowded and godless.

That's one of the surprising revelations from the new book, Native American Navigators: A Nautical History of the Algonquian Indians.

In the book, Massachusetts historian Dr. Robert Smeltzer reveals that the early inhabitants of North America were surprisingly good shipbuilders.

"Most Americans think the Indians of the Northeast Coast were passive savages just waiting to be conquered by Spanish, Portuguese and English explorers," writes Dr. Smeltzer, 68.

"But the truth is that the Algonquians in the area that is now Massachusetts Bay regularly built sturdy seagoing vessels capable of carrying up to 50 persons and enough food and supplies to last three months.

"For years, they used the ships for fishing. But around 1421, they began using them to explore, reaching Nova Scotia in about 1430."

Dr. Smeltzer says the dates can't be exactly verified because the tribe's oral records are crude.

But based on scientific dating of ships' rotes and the age of the cave paintings documenting the voyage, he believes a fleet of six ships carrying 97 men, women and children left from here in 1482 and "discovered" Europe.

According to the cave paintings, 10 people on one ship were lost at sea. The others took two and one half months to reach Lisbon.

"The Indians were, to say the least, unimpressed with European society. They couldn't wait to return to their homeland, finding the white man's culture dumb and meaningless.

"The pictographs show the Spaniards and Portuguese all pressed together. The stick figures appear to be burning

Girls AREN'T dumber in math

. . . says new study

Americans have believed for years that boys are brainier than girls when it comes to solving math problems — but that's a bunch of baloney, one expert insists.

"With the proper encouragement, training and opportunity, girls can do as well as boys in math, maybe better," said Dr. Norman Freed, a top psychologist. Dr. Freed said the mistaken notion that males are better with numbers has made it harder for women to get a mathematics education and jobs.

"Many families are predisposed to encourage sons — but not daughters — to take math and science courses," he said.

"Some teachers have similar attitudes. So we have more male math students and more men in math-related professions.

"This is neither reasonable nor fair."

The psychologist said he reached his conclusions after comparing 10,108 scores on the math portion of the national Scholastic Aptitude Test.

Scientists say rare plant stops AIDS!

Scientists have announced an AIDS breakthrough with the discovery of an extract from a rare African plant that blocks the killer virus in the test tube.

The substance, called michellamine, somehow protects body cells against attack by the virus, researchers say.

It will take at least three years before clinical trials reveal whether the new substance can be used to treat human AIDS victims.

CHATTERBOX CHOPPERS DRIVE WIFE TO SUICIDE!

Dead hubby's dentures talked nonstop — for eight years!

By KEVIN CREED, Weekly World News

DUBLIN, Ireland — Troubled widow Colleen Molloy has taken her own life after being haunted for eight agonizing years — by her dead husband's chattering dentures!

Since his death at 50, the disembodied teeth taunted and harangued the woman, finally driving her to take an apparent deliberate overdose of sleeping pills.

Mrs Molloy first made news in 1992 when Weekly World News broke the story of the mysterious false teeth that continued to talk and chide her — even after their owner's death.

Friends say the tortured woman's psychological condition had deteriorated steadily since Molloy died.

In our July 7, 1992 issue the NEWS disclosed that the teeth had begun speaking to her on the very day of the funeral in March of 1988, scaring Colleen half to death by asking her for a beer.

Since that time, they spoke to her at all hours of the day and night telling jokes, gossiping about neighbors and nagging Colleen — just as Molloy did when he was alive. Experts believe the dead man's spirit inhabited the dentures.

SHE WENT INSANE! Colleen Molloy refused to get rid of her dead husband's dentures — even though they made her life miserable.

"We're hurt and saddened, but we're not really surprised," said best friend Kate McKay of Colleen's suicide.

"We'd been expecting it. She was being driven slowly insane by those rude teeth. Keeping them near her was a constant strain.

"We urged her to get rid of them but, as painful as it was to hear them, she felt they somehow brought her close to Johnny. So she couldn't bring herself to throw them out, despite the toll they were taking on her mental health."

Colleen, 59 at the time of her death, had dropped from a healthy 140 pounds to a skeletal 90 pounds.

Friends say the worst of the denture dilemma was that she never knew when the teeth were going to talk.

"They sometimes would go a couple of days without saying anything but Colleen always kept them close to her, nervously anticipating what they might say next," says Erin, 58.

"Then, just as she was dropping off to sleep, they would make some sarcastic remark about the bags under her eyes or nag her about her smoking.

"I only hope that she and Johnny are together now — and happy."

An ironic sidelight to the tragedy: Friends of the dead

HOW TO STOP FOOD POISONING — BEFORE IT KILLS YOUR FAMILY!

You can protect your family from food poisoning by following these simple safety rules from your friends at the U.S. Department of Agriculture:

● Make sure frozen foods that smell when you buy them or their store wrapping seem to be torn.

● Date packages so you'll know what to use first.

● Store canned foods in a cool place to prevent damage caused by high storage temperatures.

● You can help your refrigerator keep food cold after it loses power if you pack it in a "block of ice" to protect the food around it. A fully stocked freezer will keep food frozen for two days after losing power.

BAFFLING 'CHAIR OF DEATH' KILLS OVER AND OVER AGAIN!

By PATRICIA GEORGE / Weekly World News

Reporter Jonathan Sims slipped and fell and drowned in a bathtub two hours after he sat in England's baffling chair of death in 1900 and became its 62nd victim!

Since then, five more people have died, bringing the death toll to 67. "He was a fool to sit in the chair," said Tony Earnshaw, owner of the inn in Yorkshire where the eerie oak chair has been on display — since 1702.

"If you sit in that chair you die," Yorkshire authorities ruled, but Sims' death was accidental, but Earnshaw insists that the man was actually killed by a curse that originated when Tom Busby placed on the chair in 1702. Convicted of murder and sentenced to hang, as managed Busby spat out a curse on all who sought sleep in or on his favorite oak chair after his death. The chair remained in the inn that Busby called home.

The fat, ale-swilling criminal Busby flung out a curse in Yorkshire today. Among the 67 people who died shortly after sitting in the antique chair were two Royal Air Force airmen who were killed instantly in a car crash, a restaurant owner who fell from a building, a secretary who was crushed under the weight of a bus and reporter Sims who drowned in his bathtub. Though Sims was the most celebrated victim of the chair he was not the last. Since his death, five more people have died after sitting in it, bringing the toll to 67.

THIS man dared to sit in cursed seat — and became victim #62!

REPORTER Jonathan Sims died two hours after sitting in the cursed chair. The Ring o' Bells Inn has been the home of the killer chair for 293 years.

TURTLE TERROR IN NYC!

Giant snappers are roaming city's sewers!

NEW YORK CITY — Giant snapping turtles — creatures with jaws so powerful they can snap a man's head off — are roaming the sewers beneath the streets of this crowded city.

The mammoth turtles — some weighing as much as 50 pounds — have been found by the city's sewer workers.

"They're big!" declared 35-year-old sewage treatment worker Tom Ross. "I've seen them this big," he added, forming a circle with his arms almost three feet around.

Fellow worker John Gibbons said he came across an even bigger, more horrifying specimen in the depths of the treatment plant in the Bronx.

"He was big and he took swipes and like a arrow," 31-year-old Gibbons said. "When he attacked, quick as long as a man's finger came out," he said.

"We sent it to the Bronx Zoo and they told us it was prehistoric."

But how do these savage creatures with the jaws of steel that could snap in the sewers of New York City?

ASPCA spokesman Ashley Hall was asked to shed some light on the mystery.

"They got into the sewers during the heavy rains of springtime," Hall told the NEWS. "The Hudson River gets too much water and gates are opened to allow the water to flow into the East River.

"There are sewers on the gates and they keep the turtles. When they're hungry, we're called to pick them up."

But what of the snappers that got into the sewers that aren't caught?

Two of the turtles found this year were a male and a female.

Did they mate? Have many other turtles and females as ever known about have mated and have had the big baby turtles? Just imagine! Thousands of snapping turtles prowling huge and unending in the dark, murky sewers of New York.

THIS HUGE 50-pound snapping turtle was recently pulled out of New York's sewer system. It could snap a man's head off in one bite.

3-YEAR-OLD GIRL [redacted] HER OWN COCOON!

CALCUTTA, India — Medical authorities have confirmed the existence of a child known by locals as the Cocoon Girl.

Tiny 3-year-old Mira Avanthi went into a mysterious coma a month ago — and began spinning a silk-like covering, which has now covered her entire body, health officials say.

Doctors admit they are baffled by the girl's condition. However, some religious neighbors believe that the little girl is the reincarnation of the Hindu goddess Kali — and will undergo a transformation into her "heavenly form" during her deep sleep.

Tiny lake claims 280 drowning victims!

ULM, Germany — Scientists are baffled by the tiny lake known as Verschwatcher, a body of water only 10 yards across — that no one has ever been able to swim!

"It's not at all turbulent," said physicist Hans Goerber. "And our analysis of the water shows nothing unusual about it."

But of the 867 known swimmers who have tried to make their way from shore to shore — many of them healthy athletes — 280 drowned and the other 87 became exhausted halfway across and were rescued by boat. Government officials closed the lake to the public in 1967.

6 smart ways to get HOW TO

1 CONTACT EQUIFAX. The best thing I did was to simply call your consumer credit information service. For CCIS is there for the express purpose of providing people with your credit. The service will not only provide helpful information, they'll even run your credit problems for you and try to negotiate a payment plan that will be acceptable to help you get them.

2 MAKE SURE YOU'RE CREDIT REALLY IS BAD. "It's possible your credit problem is due to nothing more than a simple computer error," says Mrs. Arvinson. "There are three organizations that compile your credit figures. TRW and Trans Union Corp. Get copies of your credit report from all three. If your records don't agree with them, tell them about it and get things straightened out."

3 IF YOUR CREDIT REALLY IS BAD, START BY GETTING OUT OF DEBT AS SOON AS POSSIBLE. This may seem blatantly obvious. But it's amazing how many people keep incurring new debts before they clear up the old ones.

"Begin by creating financial goals," says Mrs. Arvinson. "Look at your income, then look at your bills. Decide how much you can afford to pay each month and hold yourself to that amount, even if it's just 1 or 10 percent of your income. Most creditors are understanding if they believe you're serious about paying off your debt." The expert recommends analyzing your spending habits and setting spending priorities. Separate your needs from your needs.

4 BE CAREFUL OF "DEBT CONSOLIDATION LOANS." Yes, many lending institutions offer to pay off your creditors for you, allowing you to make just one payment each month. "But beware," says Mrs. Arvinson. "The interest on these loans can be incredibly high. The convenience of making that one lump payment may not be worth it to you."

bill collectors off your back ... for good!

FIX BAD CREDIT!

5 UNTIL YOU'VE PAID OFF YOUR DEBTS, DON'T ENTER NEW ONES. "Remember that a bad credit rating stays on your record for seven years," says Mrs. Atchison. "During that time it's important not to revert to old habits. When you go shopping leave your credit cards at home when ever possible and pay with cash."

6 DON'T LET HAVING BAD CREDIT DISCOURAGE YOU. A poor credit record is nothing to be ashamed of. Ken Scott, a spokesperson for the National Foundation for Consumer Credit – NCCC's parent organization – says that last year, the 140 branches of the service counseled more than 418,000 people whose credit was bad. "And that's just the tip of the iceberg," says Scott. "There must be millions of others. Most people don't like to ask for help. Making that call is the first step toward restoring your credit."

Easy to follow tips to keep your credit squeaky clean!

Once you've restored your credit rating, you can help to keep it squeaky clean by following these three tips:

- PAY OFF CREDIT CARDS BEFORE YOU PAY YOUR DOCTOR OR DENTIST.
- DON'T PURCHASE OPTIONS YOU DON'T NEED WHEN YOU BUY A NEW CAR. YOU OR OTHER BIG TICKET ITEM. Additional pay for automatic door locks or rust proofing when you buy the automobile does little or no more than what you'd get in those back the doors by hand. Or they broke batteries are likely to last the life of the car. Those unneeded options drive monthly payments up without giving you your money's worth.
- SAVE A PORTION OF EACH PAYCHECK. A good idea is to take out the same amount of money you were using to pay off your creditors – as many if you can afford it – and put it into a savings account to help you weather sudden financial storms.
- UPDATE ALL YOUR INSURANCE POLICIES REGULARLY. Review car, home, health and homeowners insurance. Are you constantly overpaying, despite your policies for some years? Your insurance company isn't changing you too much. You may be able to get the same amount of coverage from another company for hundreds of dollars less!
- WHEN YOUR DOCTOR PRESCRIBES DRUGS, BUY GENERICS WHENEVER POSSIBLE. Many people pay up to three times as much as they need to for medicines by purchasing brand names when they could get a generic medicine that contains the exact same ingredients. When you fill your prescriptions, ask your pharmacist if it's possible to get a generic.

ARTIST'S rendering of Rino Calamo in his mask

HAS JUSTICE BEEN SERVED?

Rapist locked in iron mask for 27 years!

He's permanently [illegible] — & insane!

By JOE VICKERS / Weekly World News

ROME, Italy — A man who raped a teenage girl was captured by her family and friends and forced to wear a heavy iron mask for 27 hellish years!

Rino Calamo, 49, was spared the agony of living out his life in the hideous contraption when federal authorities found him in chains in a shed near the tiny town of Tirano, newspapers said.

Officials who removed the padlocked mask found that his beard had stopped growing.

Even more horrible, his once-handsome face had become nothing more than a featureless pad of scar tissue, due to a skin disease.

"I certainly don't condone criminal behavior, but nothing this man could have done to his life warranted this kind of punishment," special agent Angelo Vassi told reporters.

"Wearing that mask for so long robbed him of his looks, health and sanity."

Newspapers said Calamo's crime was the rape of a 15-year-old woman in 1970. Nabbed by the victim's friends and family, he was locked in the mask they had forged by a blacksmith — and chained to a steel post in town. "The mask had three openings. Two for his eyes and a slot so he could eat, drink and breathe," said Vassi.

"By the time we were alerted by an informant, Mr. Calamo was permanently disfigured and is completely insane." Although it's unclear who published the report, it is doubtful anyone will be charged, because at least 10 individuals were involved, said Vassi.

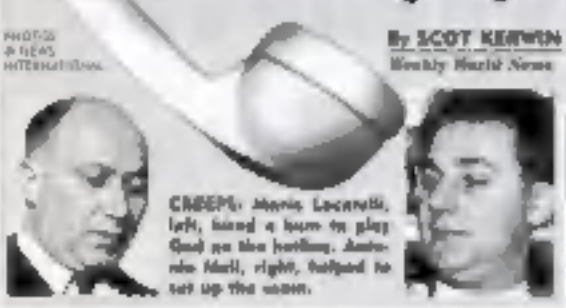
Suckers fork over big bucks to talk to God on the phone!

Swindlers hire drunk to play 'voice from Heaven'

By SCOT KERWIN
Weekly World News



CREEPS: Mario Locatelli, left, hired a bum to play God on the hotline. Antonio Moll, right, helped to set up the scam.

NAPLES, Italy — Desperate, downtrodden believers were easy prey for three coldhearted con artists who bilked them out of their life savings — by pretending to have a direct phone line to God!

But instead of talking to the Almighty, gullible victims were actually chitchatting with a bearded wino in a rundown house east of here.

"These poor people were lonely, with nothing to live for except a glimpse into the Hereafter," said Police Inspector Giuseppe Nonno. "They were convinced they were talking to God and they paid big money to do it."

The sleazy swindle was masterminded by ex-cons Antonio Moll and Mario Locatelli, police said. They charged their victims the equivalent of $50 for the first minute and $25 for every minute after that.

"Some callers gave those bums everything they had," Insp. Nonno said.

And the heartless hucksters showed no remorse, even after they were convicted of embezzlement and sentenced to six years in prison. They admitted forming a weird religious cult and persuading thousands of trusting souls to join.

"The creeps bled them dry," Insp. Nonno said. "Dozens of them even mortgaged their homes."

The con men opened their hotline to God soon after an elderly woman came to their headquarters pleading for spiritual guidance.

"She was afraid the Devil had taken over her soul," the inspector said.

So the ex-cons convinced her she could talk directly to God and get her life straightened out.

"She fell for it hook, line and sinker," Moll said. "So we decided to let all the other idiots out there talk to God, too."

Playing the Almighty was Roberto Scalfari, a former college professor who'd turned to booze and wound up on Skid Row.

"We gave him a piece of the action and he was very, very convincing as God," Moll said. "Soon, we had so many calls stacked up that we couldn't handle them all."

Scalfari died of liver failure before he could be brought to

WHAT REALLY HAPPENED TO BUTCH AND SUNDANCE?

There are dozens of stories about the legendary desperadoes — and how they finally hit the dust

By JAMES CAMPBELL
Weekly World News

Luck, science and the perseverance of two researchers may soon solve one of the greatest mysteries ever spawned in the lawless days of the Wild West — what really happened to Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid?

Were Butch and Sundance cut down in a shoot-out with federal troops in Bolivia? Did Butch kill his saddle pal, then do himself in rather than be captured? Or did they live out their natural lives in some other godforsaken South American wasteland?

The question wasn't answered in the 1969 flick Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid, starring Paul Newman and Robert Redford.

But in 1985, husband-and-wife researchers Daniel Buck and Anne Meadows decided to get the answer once and for all, and, during their search for the truth, they came up with no fewer than 24 differing versions of how the legendary desperadoes hit the dust.

The most popular version has Butch and Sundance, certain that Pinkerton detectives were hot on their trail, fleeing to South America where they could put aside their lawless past and start a new life.

To make the "new life" transition a bit less painful, the celebrated desperadoes took with them a statuesque, stunningly beautiful woman named Etta Place, who, some say, was a former teacher but who more likely had been a prostitute in Fanny Porter's bordello in Fort Worth, Texas.

"Technology (the telegraph) was catching up with them," explained Mrs. Meadows. "Most of their pals had been killed or jailed. We believe they wanted to go straight when they went to South America."

Butch and Sundance stayed on the straight and narrow for several years before resuming their life of crime . . . a life that may or may not have ended in a hail of bullets.

To uncover the true story, Buck spent months poring over yellowed and dusty documents in the Library of Congress and the National Archives. His Pacific coast counterpart, Mrs. Meadows, a petite blonde who looks like she could be a cheerleader for the Los Angeles Rams, spent her time in the Bancroft Library at the University of California at Berkeley.

Their research led them to some diplomatic papers that mentioned a shoot-out between troops and a couple of gringos in San Vicente, a desolate mining village high in the Bolivian Andes mountains.

The dedicated researchers journeyed to San Vicente where they were told by the village elders the story handed down by his father of how two men had been killed and their bullet-riddled bodies buried in the local cemetery.

Last year, Buck and Meadows made their third journey to the village, this time talking with them Dr. Clyde Snow, a noted forensic anthropologist living in Norman, Okla. "It was one of the roughest times I've ever had in my life," Snow declared.

"I've been in a lot of rough places, but San Vicente takes it. It was cold, there was no water. You can't breathe. That place is the end of the earth."

Led to unmarked graves, the researchers dug up the remains of one man and a few assorted bones of another. With permission, they brought the remains to the U.S. for testing.

If Dr. Snow determines that the remains are those of Butch and Sundance, one of the great mysteries of the Old West will be solved once and for all. Until

Mrs. Carla Ferri, from Naples says:
"I do not have the words to describe it. I cannot find the words. I did not believe in these things. But The Fortune Key gave me a brilliant husband who also has a lot of money: I won the Lotto twice and the Lottery once. I am so happy!"

Mrs. Hana Stering, from Munich says:
